Variance Denied By Appeals Board

By a 3-2 vote, the Dansville Town-Village Zoning Board of Appeals last week turned down a second application for a variance on a proposed mobile home park in the Town of North Dansville.

The appeals board rejected the request of Gerald Perry that he be permitted to place trailers on 50-foot-wide lots at the proposed complex off N. Main Street. Zoning regulations require lots 60 feet wide.

Perry of Dansville, owner of Perry and Thompson Ford in Bath, last year was denied a similar variance for double-wide trailers. His request last week was for a variance on single-wide trailers only.

Robert Warner, board chairman, said members felt that 60 feet was what they wanted to see at the site.

Perry started last spring clearing the land and cutting an access road to the 60-acre site. He had planned to include 200 prefabricated homes and trailers at the development.
